Honoring Commitment

More than 500 alumni, faculty, students, and staff reunited on campus the weekend of November 2 – 4 to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the School of Pharmacy at Northeastern and to mark 85 years of excellence in pharmacy education with its founding institutions. The grand celebration was the highlight of a yearlong commemoration of the milestone anniversary.

Constantine Meriano founded the Meriano School of Pharmacy in 1927. It later became the Boston School of Pharmacy and then the New England College of Pharmacy. In 1962, it merged with Northeastern.

Today, the Bouvé College of Health Science's School of Pharmacy is one of the nation's leading centers of excellence in pharmacy education, practice, and research.

Celebrating Success

I am reminded daily of the remarkable energy and spirit of discovery felt throughout the Bouvé community. Our college is thriving. This year promises to be a productive one as we welcome 24 new faculty and 330 undergraduate and 625 graduate students—all are exceptionally bright, highly motivated, and eager to embrace our mission.

A few weeks ago, hundreds of alumni, students, faculty, and staff celebrated the 50th anniversary of the School of Pharmacy at Northeastern University and marked 85 years of exceptional pharmacy education with our predecessor institutions. It was an extremely proud moment, as alumni joined in honoring the unique legacy they helped to create. With their continued support, and that of our health care industry partners, we believe the next 50 years will be even better.

Thanks to the leadership of President Aoun, Bouvé is advancing health care internationally. Profound discussions about health care policy are taking place. Bouvé's faculty is leading conversations in science, practice, policy, and education that will shape the future of health care.

The Interprofessional Education Collaborative, sponsored by leading health care professional associations, posits that interprofessional practice is the key to safe, high-quality, and accessible patient care. Drug discovery, delivery and diagnostics, urban population health, self-care and self-management, and healthy aging are the themes that comprise Bouvé's interprofessional nature. Under the direction of Professor Shan Mohammed, all programs come together to ensure interprofessional competencies are part of the curriculum.

I am inspired by the efforts of faculty, the enthusiasm of our students, and the generosity of alumni. Together, they honor Bouvé's unique legacy and ensure its bright future.

Easing the Transition

Who better to help a first-year transition to college life than an upperclassman in the same program? The Bouvé Fellows, that's who.

A group of 46 standout student mentors are part of the college's required first-year seminar course, designed to help freshmen transition to college life. Fellows each mentor eight to nine freshmen and co-instruct the seminar with some of the college's most senior faculty.

Assistant Dean of Enrollment and Student Services Dr. Christine Letzeiser, who developed the first-year seminar course and an earlier peer-mentoring program, merged the traditional program with Bouvé Fellows—named after the college's namesake, Marjorie Bouvé.

"The Bouvé Fellows program offers a unique opportunity for our upperclassmen to give back to a major and a college they love. At the same time, the Fellows gain valuable experience through their dual mentoring and teaching roles. This experience positions them well for the varied roles that they will have as future health care leaders," explains Program Coordinator and Academic Advisor Kristen Bell.

"Fellows begin offering support before students even arrive. They help incoming students determine what to bring, how to buy books, etc. Once on campus, the first-years have an established support system to help with myriad issues," adds fellow Program Coordinator and Academic Advisor Cynthia Seltzer.

Physical Therapy student Kari Tuttrup, '15 remembers vividly meeting her Bouvé Fellows at the start of her freshman year. "They got me through my first year," Tuttrup said.

"They inspired me to continue on the path I was on by showing me what it meant to succeed in a challenging program. I knew that if they could do it—and enjoy it—then I certainly could, too."

In her sophomore year, Tuttrup became a fellow herself. "It is great to know that one piece of studying advice earns one of your students an A on an exam, or that someone finds their niche at the school from an organization you recommended."

Philip Sheedy, PT '18, is now one of her mentees. "Kari has helped me identify my goals in the program. She is doing a sports concentration, which I want to pursue. She has been giving me good advice on how to make that happen."

Pharmacy student Ryan Seagren, '15 is also a mentee-turned-fellow and now a senior coordinator of the program. "My Fellows were so helpful and enthusiastic, and I wanted to give that back to students coming up behind me," said Ryan.

"The Bouvé Fellows are indispensable to the 'Intro to College' class because they have personal experience," explains Ban-An Khaw, seminar and pharmaceutical sciences professor. Michail Sitkovsky, a fellow seminar and pharmaceutical sciences professor, agrees. "The role of Fellows in this course is even more important than that of the professor; they are easily recognized by first-year students as peers."

To support the program, contact Nan Wetherhorn, 617-373-8986 or n.wetherhorn@neu.edu.

said John Merianos, P '61. "He was determined to make his vision successful, and he did."

The weekend celebration kicked off Friday afternoon with a panel discussion entitled "Opportunities for Entrepreneurs in Community Pharmacy," sponsored by the Health Sciences Entrepreneurs (HSE), a group of alumni business founders who serve as mentors to fellow alumni and students looking to start businesses in the health care industry. Several alumni pharmacists shared with students the ins and outs of owning and operating a community pharmacy. The event also included the installation of officers of the student chapter of the National Community Pharmacists Association.

Festivities continued Saturday evening with a cocktail reception followed by the Grand Celebration Dinner in the Curry Student Center Ballroom. Dr. George, P '57, H '98 and Margo Behrakis, Joseph, P '70, MS '71 and Nancy (Hale) Fleming, P '71, and Dr. John and Evelyn Neumeyer, Ed '78 were recognized by School of Pharmacy Dean John Reynolds and Bouvé College Dean Terry Fulmer for their lifetime commitment and dedication to the school.

"The School of Pharmacy has come so far in every possible domain, and we could not have done it without the involvement, support, and dedication of many, particularly the six people on this stage tonight," said Fulmer. "There are no words to adequately express the gratitude and appreciation the entire community feels for their transformative contributions of time, treasure, and talent."

George and Margo Behrakis are best known for their generous gift of the Behrakis Health Sciences building which bears their names, but their support goes well beyond bricks and mortar. A graduate of the New England College of Pharmacy, George Behrakis enthusiastically embraced his alma mater's integration with Bouvé and has been a dedicated alumnus who has supported scholarships and much more. (See Anniversary Scholarship Established, facing page.) John Neumeyer, beloved and distinguished former professor to many — including fellow honorees Joseph and Nancy Fleming—and Evelyn Neumeyer have established two scholarships in recognition of the school's outstanding research and expertise in pharmaceutical sciences. Joseph Fleming is credited with founding HSE, dedicating countless hours and business know-how to students and alumni in their entrepreneurial endeavors. Nancy Fleming, who describes meeting Joe as the "best find at Northeastern," served as alumni outreach coordinator and spokesperson for the 50th Anniversary Celebration.

"We are so honored to be in such distinguished company," said Nancy Fleming. "We are proud of what the school has become, and grateful for all it has done for our family."

The weekend concluded with the annual White Coat Ceremony on Sunday in the Blackman Auditorium. The ceremony marks pharmacy students' transition from the two-year academic coursework phase into the four-year professional practice portion of the program. One hundred and forty-two students received personalized white coats from the School of Pharmacy in the presence of family, friends, and faculty.

"This spectacular weekend helped us pause to celebrate our rich history and contributions to the profession and to science, but also to look forward to a very bright future," said Dean Reynolds. "Together with alumni, faculty, and students, we will sustain the School of Pharmacy's trajectory of success and continue to shape the profession."

The School of Pharmacy wishes to thank the following individuals and companies for their generous support of the 50th Anniversary weekend: Todd, P '92 and Stephanie Timbrook, CVS, Greater Lowell Pharmaceutical Association, RiteAid, Shaws/Osco/SuperValu, Stop and Shop, and Walgreens. $1 Million Raised for Pharmacy Scholarships

Thanks to a challenge gift of $250,000 from Dr. George, P '57 and H '98 and Margo Behrakis, more than $1 million in scholarship funds have been raised in honor of the School of Pharmacy's 50th Anniversary. Dr. Behrakis, who challenged other alumni and friends to a dollar-for-dollar match, endowed a new scholarship in his name that will provide both need- and merit-based aid to pharmacy students.

"The School of Pharmacy has become a nationally known research institution that remains steadfastly practice-based. It provides the best pharmacy education possible, and I want to help deserving students be successful in this increasingly important field," said Behrakis.

Several other alumni met the challenge, either by making a gift toward already established scholarships or to the School of Pharmacy 50th Anniversary Scholarship Fund. Bruno Mazzotta, P '64 made a leadership gift to help students finance what he believes is an excellent education.

Vivienne and Bruno Mazzotta, P '64

"At the New England College of Pharmacy, the importance of the pharmaceutical trinity of accuracy, integrity, and service was emphasized by serious and dedicated professors who molded and motivated our professional and personal character. This excellence continues at the Northeastern University School of Pharmacy," said Mazzotta.

"On behalf of the entire school community, I wish to thank Dr. Behrakis and Mr. Mazzotta for their generous lead gifts. We are also grateful to the many alumni, faculty, staff, and friends who contributed to the 50th Anniversary Fund," said School of Pharmacy Dean John R. Reynolds.

Dr. John Merianos, P' 61 and Gary Frazier, P '81 also made major gifts to support scholarships in the anniversary year. Many other alumni and friends contributed as well.

"There is no better way to mark this milestone than by reaffirming our commitment to students," said Bouvé Dean Terry Fulmer. To contribute to the Anniversary Scholarship Fund, contact Nan Wetherhorn at 617-373-8986.

Thank You

Renowned Expert Dr. Sidney Stahl Visits Bouvé

The Bouvé Dean's Seminar Series continued this fall with an impressive schedule of guest speakers. On October 3rd, the series featured a lecture by Sidney Stahl, PhD, on the problem of elder mistreatment—a subject Dr. Stahl has spent a decade researching. As Chief of the Individual Behavioral Processes Branch in the Division of Behavioral and Social Research at the National Institute on Aging, Dr. Stahl was responsible for building the research program on elder abuse, long-term care, caregiving, and behavioral medicine.

Other recent speakers and topics in the Bouvé Dean's Seminar Series included Dr. Melissa Simon, MD, MPH on "Engaging Multiple Levels of Communities to Reduce and Eliminate Cancer Disparities." and Dr. Xinqi Dong, MD, MPH on "Elder Abuse: Research, Advocacy and Health Policy."

For information on upcoming lectures or to view previous ones, visit www.neu.edu/bouve/about/seminars.html.

HATS OFF

A Wise Choice

Dr. Lucia Matthews, MS '94, PhD '99, recently released a psychological self-help book, written as a novel, that teaches readers how not to be overwhelmed by their emotions so they can make better choices in their lives. Harriett's Walk: How To Make Wiser Choices For A Better Life uses fictional dialogue between a client and counselor to teach a set of skills and chronicles how Harriett, the heroine of the story, uses what she learns to control her feelings and walk into the future she wants, not the future she fears.

Dr. Matthews received her doctorate in Counseling Psychology from Northeastern and is certified in Choice Theory/Reality Therapy. She is currently in private practice in Rhode Island.

NEW FACULTY

Twenty-four Scholars Join Bouvé Faculty

Dean Terry Fulmer is pleased to welcome the following researchers and scholars who have joined the faculty over the past year. "These highly talented and motivated scholars have already enriched our community, as teachers, researchers, and partners with industry. We are proud and pleased to count them as our own," said Fulmer.

John Auerbach

Professor and Director of the Institute for Urban Health Research. Since 2007, he was commissioner for the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. Previously, he was executive director of the Boston Public Health Commission. Auerbach was the state's leading AIDS governmental official early in the epidemic. He earned his MBA from Boston University.

Ray Booth

Professor in the Center for Drug Discovery in the School of Pharmacy. Ray graduated from Northeastern in 1983. He became a professor of medicinal chemistry, pharmacology, and psychiatry at the University of Florida, where he conducted preclinical studies of drugs for schizophrenia, substance abuse, and obesity. He earned his PhD at the University of California at San Francisco.

Phil Brown

Distinguished University Professor in Sociology and Health Sciences and interdisciplinary faculty member with appointments in both the College of Social Science and Humanities and the Bouvé College of Health Sciences. Previously at Brown University, Phil researched environmental causation of illness and actions in social policy that can address and prevent it. He received his PhD from Brandeis University.

HSE Mentors Help Early Detection Startup

Pharmaceutical Sciences graduate Jaydev Upponi, MP '07, PhD '12, and current graduate students Asanterabi Malima and Cihan Yilmaz have been awarded $50,000 from the National Science Foundation (NSF) and an additional $10,000 from the D'Amore-McKim College of Business Administration's IDEA program for their business venture, BIOLOM.

Malima, an electrical and computer engineering student, and Yilmaz, a mechanical engineering student, teamed up with Upponi to develop a 0.25 millimeter chip that can detect very low concentrations of biomarkers associated with colorectal cancer in the bloodstream, potentially allowing for earlier detection of the disease. The technology could also be used to monitor for recurrence of the cancer.

"First we coat nanoparticles with CEA-specific antibodies (CEA is a protein associated with cancer). Then we assemble the nanoparticles onto the chip," said Yilmaz of their design, which the team originally called NUCHIP. The antibodies will bind to the CEA, revealing whether levels are above normal. In comparison to the nanotechnology, current screening methods are expensive, time-consuming, and require large blood volumes. The new technology could also be applied to search for biomarkers like cardiac myosin and troponin, proteins associated with myocardial infarction and other heart diseases.

The team is being mentored by the Health Sciences Entrepreneurs (HSE), a group of 50 Northeastern alumni and friends who have founded successful health sciences businesses and who offer their expertise and advice to alumni or students looking to start businesses in the industry. HSE was started in 2005 by Joseph Fleming, P '70, MS '71, chairman of Infusion Ventures, and is open to alumni and students of any Northeastern college.

What's New?

Alexa Carlson

Assistant clinical professor in the School of Pharmacy. Prior to coming to Northeastern, she was a PGY2 Internal Medicine Pharmacy resident at Virginia Commonwealth University Health System and a clinical instructor at Virginia Commonwealth University School of Pharmacy. Alexa earned her PharmD from Butler University.

Jack Dennerlein

Professor in the Department of Physical Therapy. Previously, he was a senior lecturer at the Harvard School of Public Health. With an extensive background in mechanical engineering, Jack's primary research interest is in ergonomics and workplace safety. He earned his PhD from the University of California, Berkeley.

Maria Dolce

Associate professor in the School of Nursing. Prior to joining Bouvé, she was the coordinator of the Nursing Education Graduate Program at NYU College of Nursing. Her primary research interest is in the area of interprofessional education and collaborative practice. Maria received her PhD from NYU.

Jessica Edwards George

Assistant clinical professor in the Department of Counseling and Applied Educational Psychology. Prior to coming to Northeastern, she was an assistant clinical professor at the Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University in the Departments of Psychiatry and Human Behavior and Pediatrics. Jessica earned her PhD from Northeastern.

John Griffith

Associate dean of research for Bouvé and professor in the Department of Counseling and Applied Educational Psychology. He joins us from Tufts Medical Center, where he was the associate director of the Clinical and Translational Science Program. He was also an associate professor of medicine in the Sackler Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences at Tufts.

Andrea Grimes Parker

Assistant professor in the Department of Health Sciences, with a joint appointment in the College of Computer & Information Science (January, 2013). Prior to coming to Northeastern, she completed a postdoctoral fellowship at the Georgia Institute of Technology. She received a PhD in Human-Centered Computing from Georgia Tech.

Christopher Hasson

Assistant professor in the Department of Physical Therapy. Most recently, he completed postdoctoral training in the field of human sensorimotor control and learning in the Department of Biology at Northeastern. He earned his PhD in biomechanics and motor control at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Dinesh John

Assistant professor in the Health Sciences Department. He received his PhD from the University of Tennessee and was a postdoctoral research associate at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. Dinesh's research interests are the measurement of physical activity and understanding its relationship to health.

Rachel Jones

Associate professor in the School of Nursing and a faculty scholar at the Institute on Urban Health Research. Her research interest is in urban health, specifically in HIV prevention in urban women and how to best integrate technology in health care and promotion. Rachel holds a PhD from New York University.

Sheri Miami

Assistant clinical professor in the Department of Physical Therapy. Most recently, Sheri was a part-time faculty member of Bouvé's PT Department and was a physical therapist at Sherrill House in Boston. She earned a DPT from Simmons College. Sheri's research interests include neurologic physical therapy and geriatrics.

Jonghan Kim (JK)

Assistant professor of toxicology in the School of Pharmacy. Previously, he was a Yerby Fellow and research associate in the Department of Genetics and Complex Diseases at Harvard School of Public Health. He was an adjunct professor of pharmaceutical sciences at Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, and an adjunct professor of pharmacology at Harvard Medical School. He received his PhD from The Ohio State University.

Tiffany Kim

Assistant professor in the College of Nursing. Prior to joining Bouvé, Tiffany was a Ruth L. Kirschstein Pre-Doctoral Fellow in the Center for Health Equity at the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing. She has a PhD from the University of Pennsylvania.

Christina Lee

Assistant professor of Counseling and Applied Educational Psychology. Prior to joining Northeastern, she was an assistant professor in the Department of Community Health at Brown University, where she completed her postdoctoral training in addictions research and treatment at the Center for Alcohol and Addiction Studies. Christina earned her PhD from NYU.

Ennio Mingolla

Professor and Chair of the Department of Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology, with a joint appointment in the Department of Psychology. Ennio was previously a professor of psychology at Boston University and the director of both the Center of Excellence for Learning in Education, Science, and Technology and the Central Nervous System Vision Lab. He has a PhD from the University of Connecticut.

Beth Molnar

Associate professor in the Department of Health Sciences. Prior to joining Northeastern, she was an associate professor of Society, Human Development and Health at the Harvard School of Public Health. Beth received her DSc from the Harvard School of Public Health.

Tom Moreau

Visiting clinical instructor, Physician Assistant Program. Tom has over 12 years of experience as a physician assistant educator and has worked in the fields of emergency medicine, family practice, and cardiovascular surgery. He is a graduate of the Albany Medical College Physician Assistant Program and holds an MS in Physiology from the University of Connecticut.

Laura Mylott

Clinical professor in the School of Nursing. Prior to coming to Northeastern, she was the executive director of the Center for Nursing Excellence at the Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. Laura's research interests include innovative clinical education pedagogies, situated cognition, and high fidelity simulation.

Adeola Olumuyiwa

Clinical instructor in the School of Nursing. She joins us from Bristol Community College where she was the coordinator of learning resources for the Nursing Department. Adeola holds a MSN from Regis College and has been a nurse at Mount Auburn Hospital, Spaulding Rehabilitative and Sub-Acute Care, and the Boston Healthcare for the Homeless Program.

Charles (Chip) Storey

Assistant dean of research. He comes to Northeastern from Howard University, where he served as director of grants management in the office of the provost. Previously, Chip managed grants and research as director of the University Studies and Workforce Development consulting practice at Stanford Research International and at the American Institutes for Research. He holds a JD from Stanford University.

Helen Suh

Associate professor in the Health Sciences Department. Prior to coming to Northeastern, she was the program area director of the Environmental Health Program at the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago and an associate professor in the Department of Environmental Health at the Harvard School of Public Health. Helen received her ScD from the Harvard School of Public Health.

Sheng-Che (Steve) Yen

Assistant professor in the Department of Physical Therapy. Prior to coming to Northeastern, he was a research associate in the Sensory Motor Performance Program at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. Steve's primary research interest is in the area of motor control and motor learning. He received his PhD from NYU.

Meeting of the Minds

James Waters, H '93, Lifetime Trustee Emeritus, Barry Berkowitz, P '64, and Dean Terry Fulmer at the Drug Discovery and Development in the 21st Century Symposium, co-sponsored by Bouvé College of Health Sciences and the College of Sciences on November 6. Over 300 scientists and students attended this day-long program that featured three keynote speakers: Leroy Hood, president and co-founder, Institute for Systems Biology; George Whitesides, Woodford L. and Ann Flowers Professor, Harvard University; and Alan J. Russell, Highmark Distinguished Career Professor, Carnegie Mellon University.
