LEADERSHIP

Gregg C. Sylvester,
MD, MPH

SVP, Head of R&D &
Medical Affairs

Dear Prospective CSL Seqirus Fellow,

Thank you for your interest in our post-doctoral CSL Seqirus PharmD Fellowship program. We are very excited to offer this fellowship program in collaboration with Northeastern University. In today's environment, it is critical for all healthcare professionals to be exposed to a vast array of career options. This is a great opportunity for pharmacists to learn first-hand the skills and responsibilities of a Medical Affairs professional within the pharmaceutical industry and play a role in protecting the world's health through the development of vaccines.

As a part of the CSL Group, CSL Seqirus' history dates back over 100 years in the fight against the Influenza (H1N1) Pandemic of 1918, and we have been committed to protecting the public against influenza ever since.

Our dynamic Medical Affairs team and collaborative environment motivates each of us to succeed at CSL Seqirus, for employees and future fellows alike. We are dedicated to the growth and development of our fellows, and those completing this program will have had the opportunity to hone their skills through real-world experiences and contribute to the success of CSL Seqirus.

This is a very exciting time for science and vaccines, and we are devoted to pursuing cutting-edge research to protect our communities from seasonal and pandemic threats. I wish you the best of luck while you explore opportunities for your future career and hope you consider our CSL Seqirus Fellowship program.

All the best!
Gregg

LEADERSHIP

Jonathan Anderson,
MD, PhD, MPH

Vice President and
Head of Medical Affairs

Dear Prospective Fellow,

Thanks for taking a look at our PharmD Fellowship with Northeastern University. Choosing where to spend the first years of your career is a big decision, and I'm glad we're in the mix.

I've spent most of my career in infectious diseases. Preventing infections with vaccines is one of the most interesting places in medicine to work. Few things you do in a career will touch as many people by preventing a disease before it starts. Medical Affairs is at the centre of CSL Seqirus where the science, evidence, conversations with experts and policy impacts come together. It's a good place for a pharmacist to learn how the industry really works.

Two things you should know about our team. First, we're smaller than the big pharma programs you may be looking at, which means fellows get real responsibility, real projects, and real access to senior people. You won't be lost in a rotation because the connections are short. Second, we genuinely care about how our fellows grow. Over two years you'll work across medical information, communications, publications, MSL, Promotional Review Committee, and an elective in something like global medical strategy, health economics or real-world evidence. These opportunities will be shaped around what you actually want to learn.

It's a genuinely exciting time in vaccines. Wherever you land, I wish you well with your search. I hope you'll give us a serious look.

Best wishes,
Jonathan
